

I feel strongly that cable companies are given a monopoly when they are given use of public right of way and access to homes and business. In exchange, I think that they should be obligated to provide services that are in the best public interest, which includes allowing other ISPs onto their networks for access to individuals.

Furthermore, I believe that the public's interest are best served when the greatest number of competitors are allowed into a marketplace.